Dedicated with gratitude to Dag Hammarskjöld. He was UN Secretary-General from 1953-1961, politician, global peacemaker and Christian. His spiritual diary, "Markings", gathers the short texts and aphorisms about ethics and faith that he wrote amidst his senior professional responsibilities. It was published in 1963, two years after his death in a plane crash during a UN mission in Congo.

Even as a young person, these texts and aphorisms inspired and encouraged me during all these decades.

Preface

Listen carefully to your inner voice while paying attention to others. Continue your nimble dance through life.

Be inspired to discover new perspectives. Despite personal, professional and social squalls and storms, look for the markers at the wayside and use your inner compass to keep to your path. The short texts that follow seek to offer some reflections to help you on the way.

Morality is a heavy burden and ethics are difficult. These short texts are intended to counter this widespread perception by stimulating the desire and curiosity to explore ethics in everyday life, to discover the values that can be found in things great and small, in decision-making situations and dilemmas, and to find playful and spiritual approaches to reaching solutions.

"My burden is light," said the One who, nevertheless, in his Sermon on the Mount offered the vision of a maximalist ethics that seems scarcely attainable. Happy are those who are able to take up each day a small part of such fullness of life that has been offered to pass it on to others.

These texts were written between May 2011 and July 2013, often in the bus in the morning on the short way to work at Globethics.net in Geneva or in the evening returning home. The length of the texts was set by the ten-minute bus ride and a very small notebook with 17 short lines per page. Ideas for the content came from a Bible verse in the morning, an experience at work, a personal encounter, a newspaper report or the pressures of everyday life.

The order of the texts follows that of their creation. Those looking for guidance in a particular area will also find the texts listed by content. Sense and meaning, good and evil, life and the different phases of life, relationships and love, justice and politics, humanity and the environment are ethical themes that particularly inspire and accompany me.

It has become increasingly clear during my 35 years as a professional ethicist that ethics is about offering an orientation for life. Life is about change. Ethics is therefore about change. Panta rei - everything flows and dances. Yet fundamental values such as justice, peace, freedom and integrity of creation remain core benchmarks for me. They represent what is constant within this change.

Being so rooted while being carried along in this movement of life is something that applies to trees and fishes, birds and human beings. In the first place, ethics means trust: trust that we will not lose our bearings in this movement of life; trust that we will continually find the orientation that is needed, even when we cannot discern or grasp it in advance. In short, trust in life and the giver of all life.

Geneva/Cuiseaux, 1 August 2013

1

Sense and the senses

Whether something makes sense has to do with our senses.

Seeing

Hearing

Touching

Smelling

Tasting

Sense is shaped by the senses.

The good that is evil

When is good evil?

If what is good is complacent

behaving self-righteously

seeing the unethical only in others

acting cowardly, not daring to do anything wanting to do right by all being conformist, changing nothing lacking any perspective.

The evil that is good

What is evil?

It is destructive - setting person against person strong - stronger than what is good weak - collapsing and imploding a void - nothingness
in the light of eternity.

For what is evil good?

As a deterrent?

For education?

For community building?

For nothing?

4

The miracle of waves

Science:

Astronomers explore gravitational waves still unproven
The miracles of Creation God still has an infinite number of surprises in store.

Science also means being amazed about the miracle of waves in astonishment and gratitude.

Inquisitiveness not acquisitiveness

Inquisitiveness is creative, innovative.

Inquisitiveness is a virtue.

Acquisitiveness is deadly, an addiction.

Acquisitiveness is a vice.

Keeping things in moderation prevents inquisitiveness becoming acquisitiveness.

6

"I will give you ..."

"Come to Me, all you who labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you..."

(Mt 11:25-30)

What will he give?

Money? Support? Advice?

A job? Counselling? A relationship?

No. Only this:

"I will give you rest."

Letting go, relaxing

Trusting even without clear prospects

inner serenity

to seek solutions

with renewed vigour.

7

The soul of the conference

"Your Global Ethics Forum is different to other conferences.
It has a soul,"
said one participant.

The vision of global ethics
The energy of the participants Mutual respect
Including the excluded
The soul of the conference.

8

Luxury is a right

An advertisement for cars:

"Luxury is a right."

A right to Luxury?

Lux the light

Luxury - what glitters

Appearance or reality

Pretence or achievement.

Right to property, right to luxury

The social obligations of property

The social obligations of luxury

Luxury entails obligations.

Democratic Luxury

Luxury is exclusive, expensive with scarcity value for special occasions.

"Democratic luxury" * is mass production with brand impact for a comfortable life.

The dignity of the small man and the small woman.

*Philippe Gaydoul, owner of a navy boat, Fogal, JetSet

FASZINOSUM

The Good demands respect

Evil
is fascinating and spellbinding

The Holy
is attractive, leaving us trembling Faszinosum and Tremendum.

How, then,
may we experience the good as the holy like a shining light pulling us irresistibly to itself?

11

Panta rei

Panta rei - everything flows

Life is floating

Life is movement

Life is dance.

Centred

grounded

like a spiral

fleet of foot

towards the light.

The Eschaton is here

God is present

With YOU in the stream of life on the way.

Creation Art

My handiwork fashioned from the roots of a tree entangled, scarred twisted, warped is HIS work of art

The art of the creator
The art of creation
Creation Art

I only make visible
HIS work to HIS glory

The beauty of age

Furrowed scarred drained barren and drawn battered by the weather
the trunk of the acacia.

The burden of life
The dignity of age

Meeting in humility and respect.

14

Eruption

Responsibility means seismographically discerning the portents and harbingers
of impending eruption.

Responsibility
means
early warning.

15

Disease

Disease is the result of sin, self-inflicted.

This medieval theology is heresy not the way of Jesus.

And yet many diseases of affluence seem to result from human consumerism.
Self-inflicted?

Disease is not sin.
Jesus did not ask why and how but for what and to where?

16

Ideology

Ideology is distorted reality
a black and white view of the world that ignores complexity.

But the life energy of reality is stronger over time bringing down ideologies
like tree roots bringing down walls.

Ethics as a value system should enable us to apprehend the complexity of reality and thereby shape it humanely in simplicity and beauty.

Craziness

Morality is normal:
an everyday habit.

Ethics is vision:
revolution, innovation.

This requires a little craziness
a great deal of independence and a lot of courage.

Ethics needs craziness.

("Vote for me. I'm completely crazy. In a national crisis don't look to a normal leader," New York Times 15.08.11)

18

Reproving

"The Lord reproves the one he loves."

(Proverbs 3:12)

The patriarchal rod abused a thousand times but also setting limits for the child protecting them from accidents, out of love.

The ethical reprovng not looking on indifferently caring about the welfare of others indicating the right way
pointing to the path that leads to life.

19

Doing nothing

"Anyone, then, who knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, commits sin."

(James 4:17)

Doing nothing is sin.

Instead of not daring to do anything
it's better to have the courage to take a step despite the risks of making a mistake.

Ethics that accepts mistakes

Fleet of foot

in the light of forgiveness.

20

The cover up

Ethics means light.
Dark forces
seek light,
to hide the darkness.

The unethical has a friendly face it is attractive.

The dark forces seek to use ethics
as a cover up.

Crooked trails

The ethical may still sprout from the unethical like good fruit
from a prickly, smelly plant.

Against its will, evil can open doors, eyes, hearts, hands for good.

"God walks straight even on crooked trails."*

* Helmut Gollwitzer

22

Freeloaders

Taking credit for others' achievements living at others' expense benefiting unlawfully taking without giving clinging, unable to stand on your own feet.
Because of an inferiority complex greed selfishness uncertainty.

Wretched bondage
Self-esteem gone wrong.

23

Appropriation

Yoking others to one's own cart against their will is a mild form of exploitation manipulation dispossession.

Working with others in partnership
by mutual agreement is the ethical expression of the equality of others
the freedom of others respect for the dignity of others.

24

The go between

She is

A profit-maximizing banker and a humanitarian worker

greedy and human luxurious and modest contradictory identities value systems in tension.

She builds bridges

between different worlds

She is a go between.

Logic

Logic can be deadly if it forces life into a single system until it dies
if it weeds out the contradictions if it does not withstand opposites if it is not dialectical.

Logic can promote life when it imparts order and direction within the flow of life.

26

Amulets

Amulets are superstition
if they are worshipped as a God. *

Amulets are symbols of faith
if they are symbols that evoke God's healing presence. **

A fine line

* Pantheism: The gemstone is also God

Pan-en-theism : God also works through the gemstone.

The Eye

The blue eye of Turkey
a blessing at the front door welcoming and protecting guests against envious glances.

The eye of Turkey is an encouragement
to free oneself from the fetters of envy to be free to encounter others.

Virtues need symbols.

Flight capital

Refugees seek safety.

Flight capital seeks safe havens in companies, countries, currencies in stormy economic crises constantly on the run to dollars, euros, Swiss francs, kroner harried and hunted down by financial sharks.

Currency areas based on solidarity* and ultimately a world currency offer security in solidarity.

* As proposed by the monetary expert Mundell

29

A headlong rush

Dark shapes
seek light
to make their darkness invisible.

A headlong rush
ethics as whitewash
one person's shrewd cunning is the start of metanoía for another.

Caught between trust and distrust, discerning the spirits?

Criminal Energy I

The headlines said:

"UBS trader with considerable criminal energy."

Two billion Swiss francs down the drain

A desire to destroy?

Getting a kick through illegal behaviour?

Greed and addiction to getting still more?

Don't put the brakes on the energy

but transform it into the infinite energy of love.

Veni Creator Spiritus.

Come, O energy of God.

31

Criminal Energy II

The criminal was not only the individual banker but, more importantly, those who designed the system

Setting up Delta I as high-risk gambling setting the aim of maximum returns promising maximum bonuses putting a young reckless investment banker onto a roller coaster

and when he crashes calling him a criminal so that the system
can continue with the next victim.

Opium and Bread

Religion is opium

Faith is bread

Religion numbs the senses

Faith sharpens the senses

Religion makes you blind

Faith makes you see.

33

Planning

Planned and successfully implemented planned and badly implemented planned and not implemented unplanned and successfully implemented unplanned and badly implemented unplanned and not implemented.*

“The human mind may devise many plans, but it is the purpose of the Lord that will be established.” (Proverbs 19:21)

* The ethics of responsibility and consequence evaluates ethical decisions according to their actual consequences and effects and not according to motivations and planned intentions.

What remains?

What remains at the end?

A couple of archive boxes

a few publications

a living memory

acquaintances, near and far perhaps children and children's children and children's children's children.

More important than what remains is what was and what is;

love that is lived in the here and now.

35

Deep currents

It's good to define what's good
We need to consider values Yet it's demanding and takes courage to reveal the forces that destroy.

Recognising the power of the destructive currents that run deep and enabling the surface water of the good to act in the depths needs the transformative power of God's Spirit.

36

Spiritual Ethics

Take a deep breath
sing the beatitudes
give thanks for God's rich blessings.

Plug into God's spiritual energy through wrestling with God's Word in a smile in an encouraging word in a sharp analysis in a simple act of love.

Fired by the spirit, and remaining well grounded
fleet-footed and committed practise spiritual ethics daily.

37

Bears and berries

When a bear suddenly appears,
we try to escape.
We forget about picking the berry.

Bad news drives out good.
Dangers and evil
lead to action straightaway.
It takes discipline and exercise to become aware of the good that nourishes.

Don't get fixated on bears on what's bad Awaken interest in berries in what's good Practise spiritual ethics every day.

The New World Map

Country classifications reflect value systems.

Developed-under-developed is obsolete.
North-South is meaningless.
New fault lines are emerging.

The new bipolarity is heavy debts - few debts wasteful - sustainable corrupt - respecting the rule of law power-crazy - value-oriented unethical - ethical.

39

The better solidarity

Mismanagement, wheeling and dealing, corruption

The implosion of the state in Greece, Spain, Portugal, Italy?

Should Germany pay the bill?

Yet national bankruptcy and a fresh start might be better than living off others.

Refusing further injections of cash to a son who is a drug addict may be the better solidarity.

40

The spell of numbers

Today is the 11th of the 11th of the 11th.

Spellbound by the mystique of numbers

Order and symmetry

Beauty and mystery.

Say no to the superstition of numbers and the bad luck of Friday the Thirteenth.

Say yes to the living one, who with his order as our order orders the path our action should take.

41

Getting to know the son

"As I know you,"
I said to my adult son.
He smiled. Of course. I have known him since his first breath.

And yet each day
I get to know him anew.

Life's fascinating adventure is discovering the known unknowns.

42

Kiss 1: ethics ∞ Law

Ethics without law is toothless

Law without ethics is lifeless.

Ethics within law
leads to justice with love Law within ethics leads to commitment.

Law and ethics embrace Justice and love kiss each other.

Kiss 11: Justice ∞ Love

"Justice and peace will kiss each other." (Psalm 85:10)

A kiss is electrifying energy a humanising relationship.

Justice without love is static and inhumane.

Love without justice is a flash in the pan.

Love and justice together make the world go round and make human beings human.

Kiss III: Breaking the rules

Perhaps the most important decision of my life was to break the rules, an exception to the rule.

1970. The deadline for registrations for our youth work camp in Sicily had expired. The limit for the number of participants had been reached. A student who I didn't know phoned me as student and camp organiser, insisting to be allowed to take part.

As an exception to the rule, I allowed her to participate.

She became my wife. She gave us four children.

If justice and love kiss each other ...

Goodwill

Not having to pay for a hotel room or a conference fee because of illness, despite not having cancelled:
a goodwill gesture meeting someone halfway retaining customers avoiding difficulties taking account of time and effort using common sense showing a bit of empathy waiving one's rights.

It's goodwill that gives a human face to daily life and work.
Exploiting it means squandering it.

46

The ethics of diplomacy

Defending one's own interests

Recognising others' interests

Not fighting each other

Taking a step towards each other

Making careful diplomatic concessions, expecting that the other party
also makes concessions.

Putting yourself in the place of others offers surprising possibilities of achieving an ethical compromise.

The ethics of negotiation

The ethics of diplomacy.

47

Too weak

Kitchen quarrels Who's in charge
male-female roles.

irritated overwrought tired
short-tempered and with a migraine

too weak
to apologise.
Being able to make an apology is an expression of strength.

48

Dazzled

infatuated

beguiled

taken in by appearances allowing oneself to be seduced, inveigled

turning off critical thought forgetting common sense worshipping

idols instead of God.

Yet

Idols resemble gods

Appearance and reality look alike.

Ethics requires a sharp mind.

49

Translation ethics

God "is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords", says the King James Version (1 Timothy 6:15).

In today's language we wouldn't speak of God being a Potentate.

The Good News Bible speaks of God as "the blessed and only Ruler".

Language is the foundation for action
Translation ethics is foundational ethics.

Mercy and Compassion

Allowing your heart to be touched immediately and directly person to person
following the logic of the heart.

Merciful, full of mercy in Old English mildheort or earnheort, being of tender heart in modern English, compassion, from com-pati, to "suffer together" Having compassion, taking a child to the breast

Mercy is the first step to empowerment
But only the first step.

51

Procession and demonstration

Procession

follow the leader the one on whom all hopes are focussed.

Demonstration

follow the ideal demand values and rights.

Affirm your hopes and convictions stand up for your values two affirmations.

52

Secret Societies

Sects, freemasons*, Opus Dei
secret societies

Cliques to maintain power

Trust through secrecy

Lack of transparency as a principle

Prostituting enlightenment from light to darkness

Ritualistic secularism as a substitute religion.

Simply: unethical.

* "Freemasons within the whole of the French elite."

Le Point 26.1.2012.

53

Secrets and trust

"He took his secrets with him," she said after her husband's death.

"It's a good thing," she added.

"Some secrets incriminate; others exonerate."

Sharing a secret with someone in confidence can strengthen trust.

Not sharing a secret even with one's closest partner can strengthen trust.

Secrecy can create suspicion
Secrecy can create trust.

Three types of justice

Natural justice

The laws of nature

Bio-organisms

Sustainable equilibrium

Human justice

equal opportunities, rights, duties

To each the same

To each their own

Divine Justice

A great blessing

Grace that has not been earned

Love also for the unjust.

55

Unjust

Do not expect life to be fair
at least not on the scale of human justice at the very most according to natural justice and divine justice be realistic, not fatalistic.

But do expect that each day you can offer signs of justice.
A realistic hope.

56

Self-discipline

Discipline

Wanting or needing to act

Imposed discipline

discipline

prescribed by others

obedience or necessity

Self-discipline

voluntary discipline

self-determined

fulfilled freedom

Different ethical energies.

57

Legal Ethics

Religious dress codes and dietary rules are on the increase.

In all world religions pilgrimages are flourishing along with hate preachers and teachers of the law, fundamentalists and conservatives.

Where the social-ecological market system becomes unrestrained capitalism, where liberalism degenerates into libertarianism, where freedom descends into self-indulgence, religious rites and regulations re-emerge.

We need ethics that liberate.

Fountain of Youth I

Getting older

More than sixty and at the same time

discovering new strength and resources

tapping into new springs

prayers and serenity

relationships and grandchildren

eroticism and angels

swirl about, and keep silent.

The Fountain of Youth

59

Fountain of Youth II

After periods of life of burdens, dehydration,
fatigue,
lacking a sense of direction

finding a new source of life of sprightliness irrigation energy love.

The fountain of youth
from God's groundwater.

Efcharísto

"Thank you", "Efcharísto" *

ευ-χαριστώ! thank you

ευ - good

Χαρις - grace

Χαρίσματα - gifts of grace, charisms

ευχαριστία - Eucharist, thanksgiving

Eucharist is thanksgiving for the abundance of gifts God offers in Christ

The everyday "thank you!" is a prayer of thanksgiving
"Efcharísto!"

* Efcharisto means "thank you" in modern Greek Visiting Thessalonica, Pentecost 2012

The Song of Songs

Dancing wind tender hands flashing eyes feeding lips curious ears playing fingers dancing feet caring arms burning fire relaxing sleep beauty of love gift of God heavenly blessing.

Excreta

Excreta

Saliva, fat, bowel movements, sweat urine, vomit, tears, exhaled air allow the organism
to get rid of unnecessary or harmful substances.

The amazing diversity of self-purification.

Ethical purification

allows the spirit, soul and body to excrete attitudes and practices that are unethical.

Vices are pollutants that cause illness.
Catharsis, ethical purification, means conserving and restoring ethical health.

63

Stress reduction

Stress

Worry

Find a place of inner strength

Concentrate

Gather your forces

Ground yourself

Practise a spiritual life once again

pray daily

Find peace

Act from a place of inner strength remain anchored amid the storm.

"Planting seeds of transformation" was the theme of the conference.*

"I'm a changed person after this conference. Now I feel that I am a member of the global village", said one of the participants at the end.

How can we shape transformation, conversion, renewal so that small plants become the strong trees and forests of society?

* "Seeds of Transformation" was the theme of the Global Ethics Forum 2012 of Globethics.net in Geneva.

The real élite

It's better to be elitist than egalitarian better to be rich than modest better to forget about compassion.
Such are his philosophical ethics.*

I contest.

The real élite are those who are modest compassionate humble.

The masses scramble for wealth and fame.
The élite are those who stand out ethically.

* Peter Sloterdijk in his book "Zeilen und Tage", 2012
As reported by the Tages-Anzeiger 25 Aug..2012)

66

Tears

Tears of mourning

Tears of anger

Tears of despair

Tears of compassion

Tears of pity

About people I love and who are suffering, entrapped and tormented and about structures in which I am at home, and which I want to change,
yet cannot change.

My tears.

"And Jesus wept over the city."

67

Breaking promises

Are there ethical reasons to break promises?

Out of malice: no

Out of revenge: no

Out of necessity to achieve a political compromise while partially keeping the promise: yes

Because too much has been promised:

Yes, with an apology and corrective action.

To save life: yes.

Breaking promises
erodes trust.

Breaking promises
can be ethical only in emergency.

68

Five different lenses

Optimists are euphoric

they see the opportunities

Pessimists are sceptical

they see what has been destroyed

Fatalists are resigned

they refuse responsibility

Cynics are malicious

they cut themselves off

Those who hope are full of trust they believe in the transforming power of God through human hands.

I am a pessimist who is full of hope.

69

Working and praying

I was relieved that the funding application had finally been approved after six months work, preparing many documents.

A staff member responded to the good news with little emotion: "I knew that it would be approved." -

"How did you know?" -

"I have been praying for it for six months."

Those with little faith?

Those with great faith?

Twin forms of faith:

Work and prayer.

70

Silence

The ethical quality of silence depends on what motivates it.

Silence from cowardice

Silence from humility

Silence from shock

Silence from guilt

Silence in order not to hurt with words

Silence to listen.

One sort of silence is destructive;

The other sort of silence is golden.

71

Getting to the essentials

My doctoral thesis: 660 pages

My habilitation: 380 pages

My books: 200 or so

My articles: 20 or so

My aphorisms: 15 lines

and

before passing into the light of God only one word

Gratitude

72

Gift token

A gift token of 50 Swiss francs for one night at a hotel.

The token is valid but only at the standard price of 259 francs, less 50 francs = 209 francs.

One night for early bookers: 210
Saving: 1 franc.

The gift token turns out to be a mere token, not a gift.

Good people need the gift of being able to distinguish a gift from a token.

Gift value

The gift token turns out to be a mere token a ploy
a ruse

if it is not backed by honesty truthfulness

and genuine value.

Reject to Protect

Reject, to protect yourself
Keep your distance, to find yourself.
Create protected areas
so that tender plants may take root and grow finding stillness to cope with the noise.

This dynamic balance of times of protecting and of blossoming is the meaning of human dignity and humanity.

75

Christ and Culture

Christmas celebrates the Incarnation of God Incarnation in Palestine.

From Christ to Christianity incarnation becomes inculturation
God's incarnation in many cultures.
First in the Middle East and North Africa in Southern Europe and South India today throughout the world in all cultures and with Bible translations into 2798 languages.

Christ becomes incarnate in culture
Christ transforms culture
This is why Christian ethics is always contextual ethics, assimilating and transforming cultures.
The Incarnation of God.

Sustainability

The Swiss Forest Act of 1876:

Those who clear a forest, must plant a forest.

The Swiss Land Act of 2013: *

Those who turn green into grey, must turn grey into green.

The golden rule of reciprocity
the ecological rule of taking the long-view the rule of inter-generational justice together add up to sustainability.

* Proposal and principle by Benedikt Loderer, Architect, 2013. It means: if you build on the land, you must give land that has been built on back to nature.

Trust

Without cares taking care

Without concerns showing concern

Without letting drop letting go

Enjoying freedom and remaining committed

Growing with you beyond myself

Setting sail for uncharted waters, trusting in each other.

The right to be forgotten

"Love keeps no records of wrongs." *

The right to be forgotten
is a human right
The duty to remember and to forget is a commandment of love.

The digital age seems to store everything and to forget nothing.
But information technology is short-lived.
It is still possible to forget.
Instead of panicking,
remain calm and stay vigilant.

* 1 Cor 13:5, International English Version

79

The four F-sins

Sin means applying other standards than those of God.
Four widespread F-sins are

Fatalism

false resignation instead of hope

Fundamentalism

false security instead of trust in God

Fascism

false leaders instead of the One God

Fetishism

false gods instead of the Risen One.

80

Cloud-values

The Indian paths to liberation are impressive from the I to the self from the ego to the universum
from virtue to love, and yet mind numbing.

The values evaporate in the clouds.

I remember

Jesus of Nazareth

tangible

on the side of the working fisherfolk

the grounded God

down-to-earth

with the light of heaven.

81

The Cloud of Values

India - a cradle of deep spirituality
Northeast India - indigenous music
Cultural diversity, spirituality
The cradle of great gurus and thinkers.

The modern India at Mumbai Airport puts spirituality up for sale Modern bestsellers about the struggle between good and evil based on Indian mythology.
Just like American thrillers.

History repeats itself American markets are reflected in Indian ones.

* At Mumbai airport returning from 82

Virtue and Vice

Virtue and vice are like wheat and tares,
promoting life and obstructing life.

Good is that which does good Good is what is healthy Bad is that which harms
Good is that which does not damage (does no harm).

But often what some people think are pests are useful for others and wheat and tares are difficult to distinguish.
When does which weed become part of God's plan?

83

Offers – Precepts – Prohibitions

I may – the offer of freedom

I should – the precept of love

I should not – the prohibition of destruction

Offer, precept and prohibition belong together.

Together they form the triangle of ethics, values and promotion of life.

At the beginning is the offer

God's offer and gift of life

You may.

Hidden faults

Do unknowingly someone wrong Accept a social norm that is unfair to others
not knowing the long-term consequences of one's own actions.

Acting unethically unknowingly
"Forgive my hidden faults."
(Psalm 19:12 NIV)

85

Saints and Sinners

Asked whether Globethics.net
can work with companies whose behaviour is unethical.
I replied:

We are not looking for saints but rather for sinners who want to improve.

It is not the healthy who need a doctor
but those who are sick.
It is not saints who need ethics but those who want the best and who still do wrong.

Let the person who is perfect cast the first stone.

Skin and Hair

Every day
Hair falls out Flakes of skin are shed.

Every seven years
the body is completely renewed all cells are replaced
a gentle, never-ending renewal Signs of life
only scars remain.

Signs of life
are also about changing values values lead to change and growth change leads to new values constancy in renewal.

The Ethics of Life
Scars may still remain.

87

Thou shalt not swear

An oath is irrevocable carved in stone unchanged for eternity.

But life is about change adapting,
continual change.

"Thou shall not swear."*
Oaths bind and block
They kill life.

But say yes to a covenant
a contract able to be modified and renewed.
"The new covenant I will not write on stone, but on the heart."

* Lev. 19:12; Num 30:3; Mt. 5:34

 Jer 31:33

88

Love

Love is when you do not lead others into temptation.

89

Trust and Distrust

Trusting in advance

opens doors to relationships

Distrusting in advance

closes doors to relationships

Distrust without trust

kills life

Trust without distrust

Makes one blind and dependent.

Trusting in advance

supported by critical examination and experience of working together leads to Long-term trust.

Philanthropy and Fraud

Philanthropy

Helping through love for human beings
and with a critical mind.

Fraud

Illusory help out of love of oneself with criminal intent.

Sometimes the two cannot be immediately distinguished.

Philanthropy must be paired with transparency accountability
a willingness to accept criticism and keeping a balance between control and confidence.

Superstar or Truly Human Incontestable omnipotent superhuman:

the superstar.

Security and doubts,
Promoting and impeding life,
hope and despair:
being human.

Spirit-led and tested healing and wrestling
all-transforming love:
Jesus, truly human.

92

Surveillance

A data scandal involving the secret services of the global powers and global companies that are tapping and Googling and Tweeting Big Brother is watching you political and commercial exploitation an Orwellian society commercial and state surveillance.

Or

Guarding, preserving and protecting like the mother at the child's bed
"But even the hairs of your head are all counted. Do not be afraid." (Luke 12:7) Surveillance that serves life.

93

Managing desire

Desire is the energy of life
The desire to eat, the desire for sex,
The desire for relations
the desire for knowledge.
Gifts of God.

Suppressing desire destroys lives.

Uncontrolled desire leads to greed and addiction.

Managing and making use of desire in the right way, in the right place at the right time promotes life.

Ethics is the management of desire.

"I have nothing left, nothing, zero,"
The woman said in despair.

"But you still have more than me," her friend replied thoughtfully.

Zero does not equal zero.

95

Aggressive Love

Attack and aggression fighting and wounds
are the result of hatred
but also of love.

Shaking one's beloved awake provoking them to feel their heart beat and to arouse love.

Jacob wrestling with God at the Jabbok
"I will not let you go, unless you bless me." (Genesis 32:26)
The wounded hip:
love that has been grasped.

Aggressive Love

96

Harmony

Finding a balance
instead of swinging between extremes like a pendulum

Harmony
through the dialectic of opposites

Yin and Yang
instead of all or nothing

Globalance
instead of global dominance

Dynamic equilibrium
instead of deadlock

The order of existing creation with the promise of the future

Ethics of harmony.

Yes and Yes

Yes or No express a decision.

But the colours of the decision are as finely graded as a watercolour.

Yes, but the hesitant Yes

Yes, I could the Yes that ponders

Yes, if you agree the Yes that is ready to compromise

Yes, certainly the definitive Yes

Yes, absolutely the ultimate Yes

Yes, whispered
The Yes in the face of the ultimate.

Aesthetics and Ethics

My wood sculpture began with a chainsaw and chisel then grinding, grinding, grinding Grain size 30, 40, 60, 80, 120, 240 weeks and weeks of sanding down.

Sometimes relationships begin with coarse and harsh words but which are then refined, honed, carefully chosen
until they feel as gentle and soft as respect and love.

Aesthetics and Ethics
are twin sisters.

99

Ethics has wings

Oppressive morality?
No thank you!

But rather a nimble dance towards liberation.

“Do not be anxious how you shall answer.” (Luke 21:14)

The burden is light.
Ethics has wings

100

Earth and Heaven

caught between earth and heaven
embedded between these poles.

With my feet on the ground pulled by a thread heavenwards the wide view of earth and heaven.

Earthly wings walking upright

human dignity

truly human.
